

This active listening, being reflectively quiet, is actually key to us formulating and asking questions that other people wouldn't ask